Opt In and Opt Out

You may have the right to opt in to or opt out of certain of our uses of your Personal Information. For example, when you are asked to provide Personal Information on this Site, you may have the opportunity to elect to, or not to, receive messages from us by e-mail. You may tell us that you do not want to receive our promotional messages by visiting the preferences center on our Site and adjusting your account preferences. You can also opt out of our promotional emails by clicking on the opt-out link within the e-mail you receive or by sending a message to the e-mail address also included in that e-mail. If you no longer want to receive any e-mail correspondence from us, you can let us know by modifying your account preferences. Please understand that it may take us a few days to process any opt out request, and, if you opt out of receiving all e-mails from us, as a result you may not be able to receive important notifications about your account or updates and enhancements to the Site. If you are the administrator of your school's or district's account, we need your email address to communicate with you about your account.

What Personal Information is collected on this Site?

User-Provided Information

"Personal Information" is information that can be used to identify you as an individual or allow someone to contact you, as well as information associated with such information. We collect Personal Information such as your name; your school or organization's postal address; e-mail address; telephone number; photograph; reading level; purchase, site browsing and transaction history; and school/education information. For example, we may collect Personal Information when you conduct a transaction on our Site; create an account on our Site; sign up for our newsletters; make online purchases; complete surveys; contribute to a chat room, bulletin board, list serve, blog, wiki or other social forum on the Site; or submit a comment or question to us using a "contact us" or similar feature on the Site. If you are an administrator for your school or district, under some circumstances, provided that you have obtained consent of the individual whose personal information you provide to us, you may provide Personal Information about or on behalf of others, such as teachers and students at your school.

Some of the Personal Information we request from you is required in order for you to use our Site and services. If you do not wish to provide such Personal Information to us, you are not obligated to, but as a result you will not be able to use the services offered on our Site. However, some of the Personal Information we request from you is optional. This means that you can elect not to provide it to us and you will still be able to use the services on our Site. We identify optional Personal Information to you by displaying an asterisk (*) next to the field where we request the optional Personal Information.

Some of our services allow you to forward articles and other content to a friend or other person. When you use these features, we may ask you for the e-mail address of the other person. Such information will be covered by this Privacy Policy, but we will only use such information to send the communication to your friend and for no other purpose. We will also notify the recipient of this Privacy Policy.

Site Usage Information

As is the case with many Web sites, our servers automatically collect your IP address when you visit our Site, and we may associate that with your domain name or that of your Internet access provider. We may also capture "clickstream data" about your Site usage. Clickstream data includes, for example, information about your computer or device, Web browser and operating system and their settings, the referring page that linked you to the Site, the pages or content you see or click on during your visit and when and for how long you do so, items you download, the next Web site you visit when you leave the Site, and any search terms you have entered on the Site or a referral site.

In addition, we may use various tracking technologies on the Site to collect additional information about your Site visits. For example:

- Cookies are small data files stored on your computer or device at the request of a Web site. A cookie assigns a unique numerical identifier to your Web browser, and may enable us to recognize you as the same user who was at our Site in the past, and relate your use of the Site to other information about you, such as your Site usage information and Personal Information. Cookies may also be used to enhance your experience on the Site (for example, by storing your username) or to collect general usage and aggregated statistical information. Most browsers can be set to detect cookies and to let you reject them, but refusing cookies may, in some cases, make it difficult or impossible for you to use the Site or its features. To learn more about the use of cookies, including how to manage or delete them, click here.
- Local shared objects, such as “Flash cookies,” may be stored on your computer or device using a media player or other software installed on your computer or device. Local shared objects operate a lot like cookies, but cannot be managed in the same way. Depending on how local shared objects are enabled on your computer or device, you may be able to manage them using software settings. For information on managing Flash cookies, for example, click here.
- HTML5 (the language some Web sites are coded in) may be used to store information on your computer or device about your Site usage activities. This information can be retrieved by us to determine how our Site is being used by our visitors, how it can be improved, and to customize it for our users.
- A pixel tag (also known as a “clear GIF” or “web beacon”) is a tiny image – typically just one-pixel – that can be placed on a web page or in our electronic communications to you in order to help us measure the effectiveness of our content by, for example, counting the number of users who visit us online or verifying whether you’ve opened one of our emails or seen one of our Web pages.

These tracking technologies may be deployed by us and/or by our service providers or partners on our behalf. These technologies allow us to assign a unique number to you, and to relate your Site usage information to other information about you, including your Personal Information.

By using our Site, you agree to our use of these tracking technologies.

Do we share Personal Information and Site Usage Information with others?

Yes. We may share the information we collect on the Site with others for a variety of reasons. We may share information with third parties who need your information in order to provide services to us (or on our behalf and pursuant to an agreement that protects its confidentiality and limits its use to provide such services) such as to host our Site, send email or other communications, run our contests and promotions, process payments, conduct customer research and manage and analyze data). You may also opt-out for any further promotional communications, for any reason. This will not involve closing your account. We may ask you to verify your identity and to provide other details before we are able to provide you with any information, correct any inaccuracies, or delete any information. Your right to access, review, update, correct and delete your Personal Information may be subject to exceptions prescribed by law, such as, depending on your jurisdiction: (i) if your requests are abusive or unreasonably excessive, (ii) where the rights or safety of Scholastic, its affiliate, or another person or persons would be encroached upon, or (iii) if the information or material you request relates to existing or anticipated legal proceedings between you and us, or providing access to you would prejudice negotiations between us or an investigation of possible unlawful activity. Your right to review, update, correct and delete your information is subject to our records retention policies and applicable law, including any statutory retention requirements.

If you are a parent, guardian or teacher and you or your minor child or student have provided us with Personal Information about that child or student, you may review, revise and or have deleted that Personal Information, or revoke any consents you may have provided for that child or student, by contacting us at Parent/Teacher Request for Information - International, Scholastic Inc., 557 Broadway, New York, NY 10012, legal-SLZ@scholastic.com or +1 646-330-5288. We may require verification of your identity and relationship to the child.

Retention of Personal Information

We will retain your Personal Information while you have an account with us and thereafter for as long as we need it for the purposes allowed by applicable laws. Thereafter, we will delete your Personal Information through erasure of all server data and archives. Your rights to request that we delete your Personal Information are set forth in the “Accuracy of your Personal Information; Your Access and Correction Rights” section above.

Security

We maintain administrative, technical and physical safeguards in an effort to protect personal information in our custody and control against theft, loss, unauthorized access, use, modification and disclosure. While we and our service providers have policies and procedures in place that comply with industry standards to protect the security and integrity of sensitive Personal Information collected on this Site, we cannot guarantee that information will be absolutely safe from intrusion during transmission, while stored on our system, or when otherwise in our care.

If you correspond with us by e-mail or using Web forms like a “contact us” feature on our Site, you should be aware that your transmission might not be secure. A third party could view the Personal Information you send while it is in transit by such means. Except as expressly required by applicable statute or regulation, we will have no liability for disclosure of your information due to errors or unauthorized acts of third parties during or after transmission.

If you create an account on our Site, you are responsible for maintaining the strict confidentiality of your account password, and you shall be responsible for any activity that occurs using your account credentials, whether or not you authorized such activity. Please notify us of any unauthorized use of your password or account or any other breach of security.

If we believe that the security of your Personal Information in our care may have been compromised, we may seek to notify you of that development. If a notification is appropriate, we will endeavor to notify you as soon as possible under the circumstances. If we have your e-mail address, we may notify you by e-mail, where permitted by applicable law. You consent to our use of e-mail as a means of such notification. If you prefer for us to use the U.S. Postal Service to notify you in this situation, please e-mail us at securitycs@scholastic.com.

“Linked-To” Web Sites

The Site may contain links, banners or widgets that lead to other third party Web sites. We are not responsible for these other sites, and so their posted privacy policies (not this Policy) will govern the collection and use of your Personal Information on them. We encourage you to read the privacy policies of each Web site visited after leaving the Site to learn about how your Personal Information is treated by others.

Changes to this Privacy Policy

We may change this Policy from time to time. When we do, we will let you know by posting the changed Policy on this page with a new “Last Updated” date. In some cases (for example, if we significantly expand our use or sharing of your Personal Information), we may also tell you about changes by additional means, such as by sending an e-mail to the e-mail address we have on file for you. In some cases, we may request your consent to the changes.
